We also beg to call attention to the LIGHT OF THE FUTURE.

Our Rheorums are fitted with sample burners of the STERLING Patent and ALBION type, and can be found upon inspection to eclipse any other light both for brilliancy and economy.
We give the following testimonial received from Captain
the Mayor of the City of London, in the following words:
"Sir,—On the completion of the first year of your Company's contract for the lighting of the Tower Aquarium, I have the pleasure in testifying to the excellency of the ALBION burners, and the economy of the arrangement, as attested by the fact of THE SAVING IN THE COST OF GAS for the year ending on the last instant having been 1000 lbs. sterling, and the brilliancy of the light to the character of the light; I can only say that for brilliancy and economy of light, I have no other recommendation. There is no other place of public resort in London so beautifully lighted as the Aquarium."

We shall have a number of these burners lighted at our Show Rooms, and we invite merchants, bankers, public companies, managers, &c., to inspect this Novelty.

The Show Room will be under the management of Mr. H. Brownson, who will give full particulars.

But if he smells the Royal instructions behind the Attorney-General, then he will not give it. But what right has he to go behind the Attorney-General? For his action as a Minister Mr. KENNEDY is responsible to Parliament, not to the Judge, and it is the clear duty of the Judge to obey the orders of a responsible Minister. As a matter of fact, the report was not sent. Mr. KENNEDY regretted its absence, stood upon his dignity as a responsible Minister, and denied the right of any officer of the State, however highly placed, to indicate to the Government that it has adopted a specific course. Mr. HENRY MORAY, in reply, threw off the rebuke, and maintained that a public servant, required to do a public official act, was entitled to know that his instructions proceeded from a proper source of authority. But he did know that. What he wanted to know was something more than that—something behind that. He expressed his regret, however, that he had been prevented, through not being informed of the wishes of her Majesty's advisers until it was too late, from complying with their request to forwarding a report. It was he himself, however, that made it too late, by refusing to do his duty until some question had been answered which he had the right to put. Of Mr. HENRY MORAY's many merits there is no question. He is a man of a rare stamp, and an acquisition to Victoria; but in his rage with the colonial office he has a bee in his bonnet, and, as is more clear, he has not altogether forgotten the politician in the Judge, and has allowed himself to take a false position, and make a bad precedent for the Civil Service.

On Friday last a deputation of gentlemen, representing the management of the Benevolent Asylum, waited upon the PREMIER to point out that the space at their disposal was not equal to the demand upon it, and that there was urgent necessity for further accommodation. It is always a matter to be regretted when, in a prosperous colony like this, the demand for public charity increases; but when the demand exists, it must be attended to. In dealing with the question, the PREMIER will have to consider the immediate and temporary urgency, as well as the permanent future, of the Benevolent Asylum as one of our charitable organisations. The immediate urgency cannot be dealt with by projecting new buildings. What is wanted is housework at once; but to design and execute new permanent establishments will take a long while. It seems a reasonable proposal, therefore, to see whether any of the buildings at Parramatta are available; and if not, it may be necessary to rent some private houses.

The settlement of the permanent status of the Benevolent Asylum is a matter of more importance. The institution has done much good work in the past, and is capable of much in the future, and as matters stand at present it is an essential part of our charitable organisation, because it is the only place to which many helpless unfortunates can be sent. Other institutions pick and choose, but the doors of the Benevolent Asylum are supposed to be always open to those who cannot get refuge elsewhere, short of being taken to the lock-up. Some institutions of the kind we must always have to prevent the scandal of people dying in the streets. But the right status of such an institution is a matter deserving of careful consideration. If we had to begin entirely again, it is probable that we should place it entirely under official control. The Asylum is really the poor-house of the colony, and the Government is responsible for seeing that it is never short of funds. But it has for many years been one of those numerous quasi-private institutions which was the fashion in early years to cultivate. Private benevolence was always stirred up to do a certain amount of work, and then the managers had to go to Government to get extra assistance. The very fact that they got it, and were always sure to get it, reacted as a check upon private benevolence, and so it has come about that the private donations are small, and the Government contribution is large; and if our private subscriptions dropped off altogether, the work of the Asylum would still go on.

The institution has come to a crisis in its history, because it must change its location. All parties are agreed that it will not do to enlarge the present building. The position is too good and too prominent a one for a poverty palace, and the ground is wanted for public purposes. The EXCHAMBER-CHIEF Mr. HARRIS has had eyes upon a new passenger station, the present one being already inconvenient, and likely to become more and more so every year. Even if the wants of the railway should be otherwise provided for, the site of the Benevolent Asylum could be used for half-a-dozen public purposes, for each of which it is more suited than its present use. The Government intercepted the proposal for building a grand new Benevolent Asylum on the Redfern estate, and the question as to where it is to migrate is at present hung up.

In determining this point, it is necessary to consider what will be the functions of the Benevolent Asylum hereafter, and what will be its relations to the State. At present its duties are substantially threefold—first, to give outdoor relief; secondly, to give shelter to neglected children; and, thirdly, to serve as a lying-in hospital, and to some extent, as a place of shelter to people who are not otherwise provided for. It is a kind of general house of refuge, and some of its inmates are afterwards scattered. Many of the children have been passed on to Randwick, while latterly most of them have been boarded out, while old people are drafted off to the asylums specially provided for them. No part of what the Asylum does can be left undone, and under any new arrangements the whole scope of its activity must be provided for. It has grown to its present range of duty because there was a felt necessity for its action. It supplied a want, and the want is likely to continue.

There does not, however, seem to be any necessity for keeping the maternity hospital in future in connection with the Benevolent Asylum. To look after this business was not part of its original work, but fell into its hands because there was no other provision for it. Such an hospital should more naturally be an adjunct to the medical school at the Prince Alfred Hospital, and could be provided for either within the existing hospital grounds, or else in some closely adjacent position. The expediency of such an arrangement was not felt while we had no medical school, but it is very evident now; and therefore in any re-arrangement between the Government and the committee it would be desirable to detach the maternity hospital from the Asylum, and either annex it to the Prince Alfred Hospital, or make it a small and separate Government institution. As to the neglected children, it will be desirable in any new building to keep them separated as far as possible from the miscellaneous waifs of poverty that float into a poor-house. Nor need the provision for children be very large, because the healthy children could be quickly boarded out, the distinctly criminal children should be passed on to reformatories, while it is part of the plan of the State Children's Relief Board to provide special cottage homes for children who are too infirm or diseased to be placed in ordinary families. The function of the Benevolent Asylum, as respects children, will be more that of a temporary receiving-house than that of a permanent home.

Official warnings are excellent things if the public would only pay attention to them. The prevalence of mange in dogs, which anybody who perambulates the streets may readily discover for himself, has led Mr. WILLIAMS, the Government veterinary surgeon, to write on the subject, and submit a mode of treatment which may readily extirpate the disease. Few people are probably aware that the itch in man, the mange in the dog, and the scab in sheep, are kindred diseases. A sheep, it is true, may not catch the scab from a mangy dog, because the character of the parasite is peculiar to the dog itself; but other dogs may, and the cure having been given, it remains to be seen how many people will adopt it without compulsion. At present, although sheepowners are liable to penalties if they fail to take the most stringent measures to eradicate scab, we are not aware that dog fanciers or more casual owners of mongrels are compelled to cure the mange. It appears, however, pretty clear that allowing an animal to be infected with such a disease when it can be cured, is an offence which will only arise out of neglect, and it is in the bounds of possibility that, if the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals put the matter in that light at a police court, they might get the bench to agree with them. Be that as it may, the prevalence of mange amongst dogs at present leads to the inference that the disease is spreading, and in the interests of those who do keep dogs it is high time that steps were taken to extirpate it.

Protection is to be applied to internal as well as to external interests in America. That great country, with all its vast pastures, cannot, it seems, produce enough to supply the wants of its people. If it is not the case here, it is because something cheaper than butter can be made and sold for less money—something that may answer all the purposes of the genuine article. At any rate, the enterprising American has slipped upon the manufacturers of oleomargarine, and the American committee hopes that it is not known here. We cannot say that it is; but what may be said confidently is, that our success in butter-making is not great. Affairs are at such a pass now that it would not be surprising if an oleomargarine company were to commence business here. It would be a good idea to produce an article quite as good as some of the butter sold as the genuine Illinois article. Illinois must not be blamed for the abuse of its name; it is because usually its products are so good that the name is used to brand butter not better than good oleomargarine must be. This latter is made of fresh beef fat, doctored with coloring matter and cotton-seed oil. So far so good; but then this curious compound is placed on the market as genuine butter. All this would pass for little if nobody were deceived. But it appears that many persons can tell the difference. The best oleomargarine contains a small quantity of pure butter; can any one be sure that the poorest quality butter does not contain a good deal of oleomargarine? The situation has a decidedly ludicrous aspect, and, because it is so, dairymen have petitioned for legislative protection. It is to be accorded to them, and oleomargarine must not be either sold or made. For the present buttermen are in the ascendant, possibly because they are the more numerous class. But when the cheap article has disappeared, there may arise a cry from those who were served as well by it as by the best thing that dairymen produce. Who is to pledge the people that in future they will never be cheated? But the curious part of it is that any one class in this way that they have been injured by another class. If the dairymen have been wronged in the past, the sellers of beef fat, cotton-seed oil, and coloring matter may be allowed to complain now. There is no telling where the circle of complaint will end in short, it cannot be closed, and it will run through the whole community. It is a novelty in legislation to stop one trade because it injures another; and the country that enters upon a course of legislation like that will find no end to its labours.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

According to the Pall Mall Gazette, usually looked upon as a pretty good authority, France and England have come to an agreement in regard to the policy to be pursued with reference to Egypt. England undertakes to lend Egypt £2,000,000, and consents to the principle of a multiple control of the financial affairs of the country. Some important information was received in London concerning the Egyptian finances. Turkey, it is said, agrees to occupy the ports of the Red Sea, and to send a force of 15,000 men to repress the rebellion in the Sudan. The English Government has consented not to pledge England to any line of policy respecting Egypt, unless consulting Parliament. War and armed force are conditions which bring about the total collapse of the matches and gladden the hearts of the bowlers. The match between the Australia Eleven and the Yorkshire county team, commenced on Monday at Bradford, was characterised by small scoring on both sides. Every ground the Australian bowlers regarded as being well nigh irresistible; but it would seem that the Yorkshire attacking force were quite as destructive. The Australians require 67 runs to win, and should the turf be much damaged they will have no easy task to obtain the necessary runs, as Pate, the Yorkshire left-hand bowler, is almost unplayable after the ground has been saturated with rain.

Another hour was wasted upon a motion for the adjournment of the House in the Legislative Assembly yesterday, the debate being sustained by the usual speakers. The Legislative Council's amendments in the Sydney Streets Municipal Loans Bill were taken up, and the House then resumed the consideration of the Land Bill in Committee of the Whole. Clause 38 was before the committee, in which on Thursday it had been resolved that the annual instalments on conditional purchase should be 1s. 6d. per acre. After Mr. Day had moved that the annual instalments be 11s. in number, instead of 15s. as proposed in the bill, and this was the matter now under discussion. After a long debate the amendment was negatived, and the clause was finally agreed to. The next debatable clause was 41, in which Mr. Harbour moved an amendment to allow 12 months, instead of three, as proposed, before the selection is liable to forfeiture. This was negatived, and other proposed amendments met the same fate. The clause was agreed to as originally proposed. The succeeding clauses up to and including clause 41 were carried with a few amendments. Clause 45, relating to additional conditional purchases in the Eastern and Central divisions, was then submitted. There was an attempt to make the same provision apply to the Western as to the Central division; but the Chairman ruled that the question had been previously decided and could not again be put. After some discussion, the further consideration of the clause was adjourned until the following day.

The following is the business paper of the Legislative Council for to-day (Wednesday):—Government Business—Order of the Day: Sydney Corporation

Act Amendment Bill (No. 2), to be considered in committee: Matrimonial Causes Act Amendment Bill, resumption of the adjourned debate of the question, on motion of Mr. DALLEY.—That a message be sent to the Legislative Assembly with reference to the message of the other House, communicating reasons for this House dissenting from an amendment made by the Legislative Assembly in the Matrimonial Causes Act Amendment Bill, requesting that leave may be given to the proper officer of the Council to expunge from the said message the paragraph numbered 4 and 5. (General Business.) Order of the Day: District Courts Act Further Amendment Bill, second reading: Pastoral Dams Bill (as amended in Select Committee), resumption of the adjourned debate of the question, on motion of Mr. BODRICH.—That this bill be now read a second time. The Bill (Latterly, to be further considered in committee).

At a meeting of the Executive Council, yesterday, the case of the condemned Frenchman Corradi, and that of the prisoners Green and Waring, who were sentenced to death at Tamworth for rape at Quirindi, were further considered. Some additional documents were laid before the Council with reference to the prisoners Corradi and Green. A careful deliberation was decided that the law should take its course, and the execution will take place on Friday next. In the Tamworth case, the result of the recent special inquiry at Quirindi by Mr. T. K. Abbott, Esq., was shown, we understand, that the prosecutor was a person of immoral character, whilst at the trial his character was represented as otherwise. The report of the inquiry was sufficient to satisfy the Executive Council that the prosecutor was not a person of good moral character; and, in view of this, and the fact that the verdict of the jury was against the prisoner, the Council decided that the sentence should be commuted. They accordingly decided that the sentence should be changed to one of five years' imprisonment with hard labour. The prisoner is to be kept in the gaol until a charge of perjury in relation to the evidence which he gave at the recent inquiry, and when the proceedings connected with that prosecution are concluded, the case of the two prisoners may be again considered.

The Colonial Secretary and the Postmaster-General were yesterday on board the ship, the Texan, several other gentlemen being also present. After lunch the guests made the tour of the ship, the stowage for which for its purpose, especially as respects height between decks and the separation between the classes, was much admired.

The Colonial Secretary has received a letter from the Agent-General in London, in which he has informed the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos, president of the International Health Exhibition, of the inability of the Government of New South Wales to contribute to the exhibition, and that he received a reply in which was expressed regret at the course which it had been found necessary to pursue. It is reported that the Duke has declined a request to take the Duke of Devonshire's place in the matter.

With reference to the deputation who waited upon the Hon. J. P. Abbott, Minister for Mines, last Friday, on the subject of the matter, we are informed, we were referred by the Minister to the Stock and Pasture Board for Sydney, and yesterday the board held a meeting, but their decision has not yet been made known. Mr. Abbott also referred the question to all the boards in districts where there are to be found, for their opinion as to whether it is advisable to have the land declared a national reserve, and to place the same under the control of the State. It is reported that the boards are becoming troublesome in the Albury district, and about Maitland and Singleton. As showing how these animals, when so-called, have changed their habits, it has been reported that the Minister, on a very good authority, has been informed that a lioness in Maitland killed a hare, and upon opening it found seven young ones. In England the hare breeds only once a year, and rarely has more than one young one; while here they are known to breed twice a year, and such times to have several young ones.

Workshops were opened at the Department of Works yesterday for several public works, but for none of special importance. Twelve tenders were received for the building of a refreshment-room for ladies in the Botanic Gardens; six for the construction of a bridge over Wang Creek, at Tettell's Crossing, near Wangman; and three for the supply of portable water tanks for the locomotive department; and four for approaches to the railway station at Lilyons.

The conditions upon which concessions of land are granted to immigrants and others in New Caledonia, form the subject of Article XXIII, by our special correspondent, "New Caledonia and the French Settlement." Information is also given as to the terms upon which land can be alienated, also with respect to the climate and products of the island.

A MATCH for the sculling championship of the world has been arranged between Haines and Bech. In our sporting columns particulars of the agreement will be found. The race is to come off on the Parramatta River on August 18.

For the past fortnight the weather has been exceptionally bright and beautiful. In the mornings the air was keen, but the genial sunshine dispelled all chilliness, and the nights have rarely been cold. Yesterday morning was colder than usual, but as the day wore on the sun shone brightly, and the weather was decidedly pleasant. Towards evening the sky became overcast, and the weather had a threatening appearance, but no rain fell until nearly 11 o'clock, and then there were only a few drops, not enough to lay the dust. The wind, which there was of it, was very unsteady, and it seemed as if the rain would come. After midnight several light showers fell, and the indications of a further rainfall became more marked.

The action Stimson and another v. the Minister for Works, to recover compensation for certain allotments of land at Gullford resumed by the Government, before the Hon. Mr. Justice, at the instance of the defendant, was resumed yesterday, and a verdict was returned for the plaintiffs, with £143 12s. 6d. damages. The action Forsythe and another v. the Minister for Works, to recover damages alleged to have been sustained by the plaintiffs owing to the defendant, was resumed yesterday, and a verdict was returned for the plaintiffs, with £143 12s. 6d. damages. It is not generally known that a further step towards the assimilation of colonial legal procedure to that in force in England has recently been made (but not by the colonial Legislature) by the late from the Imperial Government of "Rules for the Vice-Admiralty Courts in Her Majesty's possessions abroad." The Court having jurisdiction over the colonies, and the law is now only a branch of the Imperial Admiralty Court, and the provisions of the Rules of the English Admiralty Courts are applicable to the colonies.

MESSRS. COLEMAN AND HAWKWOOD, of 623, George-street, have recently executed some very clever specimens of glass staining and etching. Every shade of stained glass is worked upon, the coloured surface being etched with acid, and the design is then formed in the design. These designs are for the most part groupings of flowers and foliage, and among the most artistic panels now on view are those in which the acorn and oak leaf, the warrent and its serrated leaves, and the ivy leaf, are represented.
